PROVERBS, Ch. XIX. Ver. 27.

Cease, my Son, to hear the Instruction, that causeth to err from the Words of Knowledge.

THERE is no Subject on which the wise Man enlargeth more copiously, than in urging the Necessity of receiving the Instruction of Wisdom; and in shewing the Advantages, which arise from applying our Hearts early to Understanding. Blessed is the Man, says he, that beareth Wisdom, watching daily at her Gates, waiting at the Posts of her Doors.—In another Place, Take fast Hold of Instruction; let her not go; keep her, for she is thy Life.—And again, Gather Instruction from thy Youth up; so shalt thou find Wisdom till thine old Age. But the first and principal Step towards the Acquisition of Truth, is to be secured from Error. In the Text therefore he proceeds to guard us against Instruction of another Kind; which teacheth indeed, but not in the Way of Wisdom; and he admonisheth us, not to incline our Ear to such Doctrine, as under the Pretence of guiding us into the Paths of Truth, causeth to err from the Words of Knowledge.

THIS is an Admonition, in every Instance of the greatest Consequence to the right Conduct of Life; but the Importance of it is in no Instance more remarkably verified, than it appears to be in some Circumstances of this Kingdom. When we consider the State of which with regard to Religion, and compare the Condition of those, who compose the Bulk of it's Inhabitants with the length of Time that the English Government hath been established in it; it is natural at the first View to be struck with some Degree of Surprize, that the Genius of Freedom should have operated with so little Success; that it's Effects in so long a Period, should correspond so little either to the Nature of Things, or to what England has experienced under the like Circumstances.

Bulk

THE Religion of the lower Class of the Natives is distinguished from the Popery of most other Countries, by grosser Corruptions, by a less Regard to the social Duties, by peculiar Bigotry, and a more fatal Influence on the civil Interests of the Kingdom. The Enlargement of Commerce, how much soever it hath increased the national Opulence; or how widely soever it hath diffused the Refinements even of Luxury, hath extended none of it's usual Benefits to them, nor availed to abate the Wretchedness of their Manner of living. Nay; even Liberty itself has so few Charms in their Eyes, that, under the mildest Government, under a Constitution founded on the Basis of Freedom, the darling Object of their Wishes is Subjection to foreign Tyranny.

FULLY to lay open the Cause of this State of Things, would lead us into a Field of Enquiry too extensive for the Compass of this Discourse. It will be sufficient to observe, that the Sources of this Evil may be traced back, thro' a Series of Causes, in the Events of War and Practices in Time of Peace; in the Operation of antient Laws and Influence of barbarous Customs, to the earliest Periods of our known History. In the pernicious Effects of antient Customs on Industry and Improvement, we may perceive the Origin of that Sloth and Indolence, which characterize the lower Class of the Natives. In the Retentment of an injured People, who, by a Complication of ill Policy and cruel Oppression, were denied the Benefit of English Laws, when they eagerly sought for them, we may discern the Source of that Reluctance to accept the Laws, to adopt the Manners or embrace the Religion of England, which is even at this Day too visible amongst the inferior Ranks of their Descendants. Various other Instances might be produced from our History of a similar Kind; the united Effect of which was, that the Manners of a People, capable of high Degrees of Improvement remained long rude and uncultivated, and that a Country, on which Nature had with a liberal Hand poured forth it's choicest Gifts, wore for Ages the face of Barbarism and Desolation.

GREAT as these Evils were, had no other Obstacle intervened, they must in Time have found a Remedy. The Progress of Arts would have softened the Manners of the People; the lenient Hand of Time would have allayed the mutual Hatred of the Natives and English Colonists, and the blessings of Peace, Security, and Freedom, would have reconciled the most savage Minds to the English Government. But the Reformation gave birth to a more fatal Division, and created a perpetual Fund of Enmity by producing a new Distinction of religious Interests.

AT this Time the Inattention of England to the Progress of the Reformation here, whilst it was there in an infant, imperfect State; the Want of such shining Lights in this Kingdom as might dissipate that Night of Ignorance which overspread the face of it; and the Bar which a different Language threw in the Way of Instruction from other Quarters—All these conspired to enable the Friends of Popery to rivet every religious and political Prejudice in the Minds of the People, to bind the Fetters of Superstition more strongly on them, and consequently to increase the Difficulty of every future Attempt to break its Chains asunder. Under these Disadvantages it is not to be wondered at, that the Light of the Reformation shone but faintly, and was not widely spread; it is rather to be wondered, that it acquired Vigour enough to survive the subsequent Wars and Rebellions, and that it was not by the general Massacre of the Protestants, totally extinguished. In the Intervals between these, Endeavours were not wanting to reform the Evils, and to improve the natural Advantages of the Kingdom; which from the Fatality of the Times could not but fail in the Execution. Nor was it, 'till the glorious Event of the Revolution had established Peace, good Order, and Freedom on a solid Foundation, and given Stability to the political and religious System of Government, that a Work of such Importance could successfully be carried on.

BUT in the Effects of the Revolution on the different Subjects of Religion, and civil Improvement, from the Nature of each a considerable Difference was to be expected. In a Country circumstanced, as this is, by its Situation and Constitution, the natural Offspring of Peace and Liberty was the Revival of Industry, and the Extension of Commerce. These therefore quickly flourished, and soon began to give a new Face to the Kingdom. But with the Cause of Protestantism it was otherwise. Bound by its own Principles and those of the Constitution, to make its Way by mild and gentle Methods, to compel its Adversaries to come in by the Force of Reason and Persuasion only, its Progress could not be rapid. The Law indeed lent its Aid, by providing some Inducements to the Rich, to prefer the Communion of our Church, to that of Rome; but Laws, operating solely on Property, could not affect the Multitude. They were left to the Dominion of their antient Prejudices, till by such Methods as should be consistent with the Spirit of a mild Religion gion and free Constitution, they should be taught to see the Things that make for their Peace.

AND if this Labour of Love, which tho' the peculiar Office of one Order of Protestants, is equally the undoubted Interest of all, had been always equally the Attention of all, some Progress might have been made.

THE Intercourse arising from the various Relations of civil Life, would afford many Opportunities of advancing this Work; and Truth, when supported by kind Offices, and enforced by Acts of Benevolence; would carry Persuasion with it, and at least procure itself a more easy Reception. But, besides that the Love of many to Religion itself is waxed cold, there is too often an unhappy Indolence attending a good Cause, for the Support of which Men are too apt to trust to its intrinsic Merits: Whereas the Spirit of Darkness is never at rest; there is an Alacrity in malignant Minds, and the worse any Cause is, the keener usually is the Prosecution of it.

IT is true indeed, that it is justly expected of those who are the professed Teachers of our holy Religion, to take the Lead in its Propagation; and we trust that this part of the Clergy's Duty is duly attended to, and practised by them. But they who will candidly consider the State of the Church in many Parts of this Kingdom, will acknowledge, that many Difficulties remain to be removed, to smooth the Way for their Labours, and enable them to advance successfully in this Part of their Ministry.

BUT, supposing that the Circumstances of the Church were in many Respects the Reverse of what they are; that (for Instance) the Number of Labourers were more proportioned tioned to the Extent of the Vineyard; that all Parishes had their distinct Places of Worship, and Accommodation for the Residence of their respective Pastors; were their Access to the Papists easy; these as willing to hear, as those to instruct; and the Impediment of a different Language removed—I say, all this supposed, yet to conquer antient, hereditary Prejudices, to reason ignorant Men out of Opinions, taken on Trust, and which Reason had no Hand in forming, is no easy Task; how much less so? when such Opinions are dressed in the awful Garb of Religion, and sanctified by Fear and Superstition! Shew those unhappy People the genuine Form of the Faith which was once delivered to the Saints; tell them of the many plain and positive Precepts of God against their idolatrous Practices—How little will this avail? When the Plenitude of papal Power supercedes in Effect the Authority of Christ, and makes void the Commandments of God, through the Inventions of Men.

IMPLICIT Faith, and a blind Devotion to the Will of their Priests, constitutes the Essence of their Religion. In Proportion to the People's Ignorance must ever be their Bigotry and Superstition, and consequently the Power of their Priests. Whilst that Influence remains, what Hope of engaging their deluded Followers to forsake the Faith of their Ancestors? A Faith, so adapted to a State of profound Ignorance by bringing into Captivity every Thought to the Obedience of the Priest; so commodious for the Indulgence of every Appetite, by reconciling Sin with Religion; so comfortable in the Hour of Death, by opening the Gates of Heaven to the most abandoned Sinners.

A DE-

A DELUSION such as this is, founded in the known Weaknesses of human Nature, and supported by the strongest Motives that the Abuse of Religion can supply, will maintain its Ground, till the Ears of its mistaken Votaries shall be opened to receive the Voice of Wisdom and Truth ; 'till they shall cease to bear the Instruction that causeth to err from the Words of Knowledge. But to expect that such a Change as this, so extensive as to comprehend the Bulk of the Nation, and turn the Scale in favour of Protestantism, can, by ordinary, human Means, be wrought on the Minds of Men, who have been taught from their Infancy to hug their Chains, and are grown old in Error ; seems to argue an Ignorance of human Nature. If it is ever to be effected, it must be by calling in to our Assistance the Influence of Education ; by laying the Foundation of it, at that Season of Life ; which is marked by Nature as the Time for forming the future Characters and Conduct of Men.

TO produce this Effect is the great Object of the Institution, which we are this Day met to encourage and promote. An Institution, which from the very Design of it bespeaks our Regard, and if it be as duly executed, as it is wisely planned, is justly entitled to our most generous Support.

SUCH is the well known Power of Education ; that the wisest Legislators have at all Times esteemed it an Object of the greatest Importance to the Welfare of their respective States. In Individuals, it forms the essential Difference between Man and Man : In Communities, it creates that important Distinction in the Characters of different Nations, the Result of which is the Superiority of one over the other.

THIS

THIS Power arises from the very Frame and Constitution of human Nature which is so formed by the great Author of it, that the Qualities of our Minds depend almost entirely on the Impressions they receive, and the Bent they take from early Custom and Habit. To trace the Progress of Habits thro' their several Steps of Increase till they have attained their full Maturity may be impossible, but the Reality of their Force and Strength of their Operation is fully demonstrated by the Experience of all Ages; in so much that in general the Characters of Men are little more than the Result and Continuance of those Modes of thinking, and that Course of acting, to which they have been accustomed from their earliest Years.

IN pursuance of this acknowledged Principal, the Design of the CHARTER SCHOOLS is to train the Children of poor Papists in such a Way as may secure the Influence of Education on the Side of Truth; may prevent the Instruction which causeth to err from the Words of Knowledge; and enlist their earliest Prejudices in the Service of our Religion and Country. To employ Force for such a Purpose, would be both odious and unwarrantable, the Spirit both of our Religion and Constitution would recoil at the Thoughts of extorting from Parents of what Rank soever, that Right over their own Offspring which Nature has given them, but it was hoped by the Founders of this Institution, that the Voice of Nature would plead more strongly in Behalf of the Children's Interest, than that of Superstition against it; and it was reasonable to think that they who were struggling under all the Hardships of Poverty would gladly accept the Offer of such an Asylum for their Children, as the Scheme of the Charter Schools opened to them; a Scheme so full of the Spirit of Charity and public Good, that its Institution met with the most just Applause, and raised the most sanguine Hopes of its producing the most beneficial Consequences. The Friends of our Church and Constitution in both Countries approved, encouraged and supported it. Our Adversaries also gave ample Testimony of its Utility. Their Praise would have been suspicious, their Encouragement absurd, their Opposition fruitless. They did what was less equivocal, and more decisive of their Opinion of it, they misrepresented, traduced and imitated it; they set up Schools of their own to counter-act the Design of these, and thus by adopting the Idea of our Institution, asserted in the strongest Manner the Truth of its Principle.

To enter into a minute Detail of the several Branches of the Plan, to shew how the Spirit of Charity, Wisdom, and Frugality reigns throughout the whole of it, and extends even to the minutest Particulars, would take up too much Time. Let it only be observed that the Object of it being Two-fold, the political and religious Welfare of the Kingdom, the Plan is calculated with a View to each. Labour therefore, and Instruction are combined in it, and go Hand in Hand together. In the Distribution of each, the greater Part of the Time is allotted to labour, both because the Minds of Children are incapable of long Attention to Learning, and because much Learning is not necessary, to their Rank of Life, which is chiefly designed for Action.

THE Learning given them is such as has an immediate Connection with the important End of the Institution; such as may make them wise unto Salvation; such as may season their Minds with early Notions of their Duty to God and Man, and may guard them against the pernicious Errors of Popery. To this is added no more of any other Kind, than what may fit them for some humble Employment, such as in the present State of Improvement in every Branch of Trade is necessary, even to the lowest Classes of Life.

IN the Appointment of the Labour, regard is particularly had to those Occupations in which their future Services may be most beneficial, both to themselves and the Public, and the Degree and Kind of each is adapted to the Sex, and proportioned to the respective Ages, Strength and Capacities of the Children.

IT is this early training that teacheth the Hands to work with Skilfulness; and by which that Quickness, Ease, and Elegance of Motion is acquired, on which the Perfection of every Manufacture so much depends. And it is wonderful to observe at how early an Age the Providence of God has enabled Children to become useful to Society; how in the Hands of almost Babes and Sucklings, he hath in this Way also ordained Strength: Strength sufficient to supply by their Labour, no small Part of the Expence of the respective Schools. Thus early do they begin to make some Amends to the Public for its Care of them, and to encourage their generous Patrons with the pleasing Prospect of the Advantages to be expected from their future Progress.

AGAIN, in the Plan of each School by a judicious Distribution of Labour, Instruction and Recreation, succeeding each other by fixed and stated Returns, early Notions are insensibly given them of Regularity and Order. And in general the Idea of this Institution is, that besides the Rudiments of Religion, and Manual Occupations, Habits of Life and Conduct, Habits of Attention and Industry, of Obedience to others and Government of themselves, should be the Result of the Discipline, and be gradually wrought into the Frame of their Minds and Characters.

THUS

THUS prepared, at a proper Age, they are apprenticed out to some humble Employment; so that from hence as from a kind of general Magazine, every Trade may be supplied with a Succession of useful Hands, and, what is of universal Consequence, every Family with well principled Protestant Servants.

BUT to suppose that the best concerted Plan is liable to no Objection, is to ascribe a greater Degree of Perfection to it than can justly be attributed to any merely human Invention. 'Till Perfection shall become the Attribute of Man, the Want of it will be no Imputation on the Works of Man. Every Plan of this Nature therefore should be considered even in its compleatest State, as still capable of farther Improvement, and every Objection should be viewed in the Light of a Proposal for it. As the Object of this Institution is manifestly good, and the Plan on the whole wisely concerted, they who wish Success to the useful Design of it, will not object to what is good, because it is not better; nor will they by hasty Conclusions to its Disadvantage, countenance the Malice of those who are Enemies to it on Principle. Objections may be made, perhaps from a partial View of the Case, from considering particular Rules, simply and independently, and not in the Relation they bear to other Parts of the Scheme. Faults may be ascribed to the Plan, which are in reality Defects in the Execution; or Improvements may be pointed out, excellent indeed in themselves, but such as the present Scantiness of the Fund cannot admit. In a Plan of so extended a Policy, the best designed Rules may be perverted, and Abuses may insensibly creep in, which will have their Course till the Discovery of them brings on their Correction. In the Alteration of Times, a Change of Circumstances may require a Change of Oeconomy, as what was originally proper and prudent in one Situation of Things may become in another the Reverse. Accordingly the Society hath at all Times shewn its Attention to improve on its original Plan, by various Additions and Alterations, and hath occasionally adopted new Rules, as the former have proved in the Event to be insufficient or inexpedient. At the Commencement of this Scheme, the Consequence of keeping the Children at Schools where their Friends had a free and constant Access to them was not foreseen, and it was afterwards found necessary to transplant them to a greater Distance, as the Priests abused the Opportunity of this unrestrained Inter-course to the Perversion of the Children's Principles, thus contriving to secure to the Papists the Benefit, and at the same Time to defeat the End of the Charity.

BUT tho' the Conversion of the Papists is the primary Object of this Scheme, the Practice of the Society does not totally exclude the Children of Protestants; which however it may seem to imply a Departure from, does in Reality perfectly coincide with the original Idea and Views of the Institution. In every Scheme of this Nature, the Evil prevented is of almost equal Importance with the Good produced by it. Now, considering the Manner in which the Poor are too often brought up; in a State of Idleness and brutal Ignorance; how naturally must they, as they advance in Years, become exposed to all the Temptations incident to a State of unprincipled and idle Poverty, or to the Snares and Artifices of the Romish Emissaries, who are wise in their Generation, and with an Industry, worthy of a better Cause, are daily going about seeking whom they may seduce. And whether such Persons remain the Pest of Society, as nominal Protestants, or become the Enemies of our Constitution, as real Papists; whether they continue under the Influence of no Religion at all, or are adopted into the worst and most absurd, is an Alternative

Alternative equally detrimental to the Cause of Protestantism. Of those, who, under the Protection of this excellent Charity, have been rendered useful Members of our Church and State, how many might have otherwise fallen within this Description, it is impossible to say; but that many would is not unreasonable to affirm; and the very Prevention of such an Evil, is surely equivalent to the greatest positive Good.

HOWEVER, allowing the utmost Latitude to the Force of this Reasoning, it is undoubtedly preferable to make the original Design of this Institution, its perpetual Object; and unless in Cases which will fairly justify the Exception; to admit none into the Schools, but the Children of Papists. In order to fill the Schools at all Times with these, it is plainly necessary to render the Scheme of them, which in itself is a Kind of gentle Force upon Nature, as inviting to the Papists, as the Nature of the Institution, and the Reason of Things will admit. Our Adversaries will leave no Method untried to defeat a Scheme, which threatens to overturn the Basis of their Power and Influence; and they who scruple not to thunder out the Terrors of the Church against those Parents, who, by trusting their Children with us, encourage our Scheme, will not fail to avail themselves of every Misconduct in the Execution of it.

IT is of the utmost Consequence therefore that in the Choice of the Masters and Mistresses, in whom so many different Qualifications are required to center, private Favour or Interest should not interfere; nor any other Motive than an Opinion of their real Merits influence the Reports of their Conduct. To make them observant of their Duty, much Attention is requisite. It is the controlling Eye of Authority, which can alone keep alive the Spirit of the Scheme; without which every Regulation, how wisely soever planned, will become a mere dead Letter. The local Committees therefore are undoubtedly sensible that no Circumstance in the Management of the Schools, how minute soever it may appear, should escape their Inspection.
become

NOR is this sufficient. To have consecrated the Age of Innocence to Religion and Industry will be to little Purpose, if when they are launched out into the World, they forget God, and depart from the Principles in which they were trained. To prevent this, the utmost Caution should be used in the Choice of those, to whom they are apprenticed out; that they be such on whose Life and Practice the Religion they profess has a visible Influence; who by their domestic Care and Example, may improve and cultivate the good Seeds implanted, and ripen them to Perfection. In this, as in every other Instance, the Society has entire Confidence in the Care of the local Committees.

FROM the Sketch I have given of the general Views and particular Management of this Institution, it evidently recommends itself by the strongest Motives to the publick Protection. To give this effectually, we should contribute towards it liberally; as it is obvious, that even to maintain it in its present Vigour, though in every Instance the strictest Regard be had to Frugality, a large Supply must be requisite. The constant ordinary Demands upon it are great; the Fund by which they are to be supplied is in great Measure precarious, if it gathereth much, it hath nothing over; if it gathereth little it will have much Lack, in Years of Scarcity especially, such as the present Year has remarkably proved; when the advanced Price of Provisions necessarily causeth a great Increase in the Expence attending each School. By the Providence of God, who hath raised up the warmest Friends to the Institution in both Kingdoms, and hath more than once by Means of unexpected Donations refreshed the Plant,

when ready to wither, it hath hitherto flourished to a considerable Heighth.

HERE we must in an especial Manner acknowledge with becoming Gratitude to the Support which it deriveth from the Munificence of our gracious Sovereign, and the Liberality of Parliament. We are also called upon to express our Thankfulness for the Benevolence of our corresponding Brethren in England, who, though the least concerned in the Success of the Scheme, from a laudable Motive of Christian Charity and Affection to the Protestant Cause, have contributed most bountifully to its Support. Happy would it be for the Interests both of our Religion and of our Country, if a Scheme of so important Influence on both, could be extended beyond its present Limits! That indeed, the Condition of our Fund will not admit; and the Call on our Liberality now, is not to enlarge the Plan, but to support it in its present State. Something surely might be spared from the Expence which we so freely indulge to our frivolous Pleasures, without entrenching on our real Wants or Enjoyments. They, on whom the Motives of Religion, Charity, or Love to their Country, have their just Influence, need no Persuasion to promote a Design, in which all these Views are united; and let those who make no Scruple to lavish their Wealth in Pursuit of their Vices, learn to make some amends to the succeeding Age for the Mischief their Examples do to the present. If we cannot Rival our richer Neighbours in the Degree of our Liberality, we may do more than they in another Respect; we may give what they cannot, and we ought to give; our Time and Attention in superintending the Execution of the Plan, and by so doing may even more effectually serve it.

To engage us to this, what is it which the Scheme of the CHARTER SCHOOLS is designed to promote? is it not, to render der that, which, by a strange Contradiction to the Experience of all other Times and Countries, constitutes our present Weakness, the Number of our People, our permanent Strength; to increase our Opulence; to preserve our Religion; and secure the Blessings of our happy Constitution to our latest Posterity.

AGAIN, what is it, which this Institution aims at preventing? surely no speculative Evil, no visionary Danger; but an Event, which, if we wanted other Assurances, the Annals of our own History might sufficiently warn us, is big with the most alarming Threatenings, the Increase of Popery. Thanks be to God, the Arm of Popery in these Kingdoms at least, is shortened. But is she therefore become gentle and innocent? her very Mercies were wont to be cruel; hath she learned to be gracious? hath she ever retracted her inhuman Doctrine of Persecution for Conscience sake? are her Abettors in this Kingdom willing to give the legal Proofs of their Attachment to our civil Interests? we know the Contrary.

BUT it is not simple Popery, which we of this Kingdom have Reason to apprehend. It is not only Popery, with all her portentous Errors, pernicious Maxims, and cruel Practices; It is Popery with all these inflamed by repeated Disappointments; the Edge of her natural Fury sharpened with peculiar Malice and Revenge—I might here present to your Imaginations the Picture of such a Scene, as the Triumph of such an Enemy would be likely to produce; and in which indeed, had not the Providence of God, which ruleth over all Events, and hath so often visibly interposed for our Preservation, inspired the Vigilance of Government to prevent, we ourselves might have born too great a Share. But I do not wish to alarm your Apprehensions with the Prospect of Dangers, which we trust will never be realized, much less would I desire to excite uncharitable Thoughts of the Followers of that Superstition, whilst they remain amenable to our Laws. But it is surely prudent, not to sleep in entire Security, nor absolutely to shut our Eyes against even a possible Danger.

THEREFORE, until the Wisdom of the Legislature shall strike out some other Method to promote the Increase of Protestantism, more effectual than this, and equally consistent with the Spirit which prevails in our Religion and Constitution; let us carefully attend to the Support of this; which, together with many other important, national Benefits, lays the Ax at the Root of Popery—a Method, slow indeed in its Operation, but for that Reason likely to produce the more permanent good Effects.

WE trust therefore, that the laudable Zeal, which has inspired so many Schemes of publick Utility, will never permit the most important of all, and which indeed has a close and intimate Connexion with them, to decline for Want of due Attention to it. We shall never suffer the Reproach, of letting a Scheme of such extensive Benevolence, and comprehensive Merit, supported hitherto, in great Measure, by the Zeal of those, who are more remotely interested in its Success, to fail through domestic Negligence. We may rather draw an happy Presage of its future Prosperity from that peculiar Mark of Favour to our Society, which adorns the Solemnity of our present Meeting.

DID the same Spirit, which gave Birth to the Institution, animate the Progress, and invigorate the Execution of it, it would not need the Support of Advocates to plead its Cause; it would speak aloud to us in the most powerful and convincing vincing Language; its good Effects would be so sensibly felt, that we should be eager to diffuse the benign Influence of it throughout the Kingdom. Then might we justly hope, that in Time our People would become one Flock under one Shepherd; then might we with Joy and Gladness look forward to the Generations to come; and in the strong and emphatical Words of the Prophet Isaiab, say to our Church or Country; Lift up thine Eye round about, and behold; all these gather themselves together, and come unto thee; thou shalt Clothe thee with them all, as with an Ornament; thou shalt Bind them on thee as a Bride doth. Thy waste and desolate Places shall be too narrow by Reason of their Inhabitants: No Weapon formed against thee shall prosper; the Tongue that riseth in Judgment against thee shall be condemned. Thy Peace shall be as a River; thy Righteousness as the Waves of the Sea.

HIS MAJESTY'S ROYAL CHARTER,
For Erecting and Promoting English Protestant Schools
in I R E L A N D.

G EORGE the Second, by the Grace of G O D, of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.—
To all Persons to whom these Presents shall come.—Forasmuch as we have received Information by the Petition of the Lord Primate, Lord Chancellor, Archbishops, Noblemen, Bishops, Judges, Gentry, and Clergy of our Kingdom of Ireland, That in many Parts of the said Kingdom there are great Tracts of Land almost intirely inhabited by Papists, who are kept by their Clergy in great Ignorance of the true Religion, and bred up in great Disaffection to the Government: That the erecting of English Protestant Schools in those Places, is absolutely necessary for their Conversion; that the English Parish Schools already established are not sufficient for that Purpose; nor can the Residence of the Parochial Clergy only, fully answer that End.

An Abstract of the Charter.

To the Intent therefore that the Children of the Popish, and other poor Natives of the said Kingdom, may be instructed in the English Tongue, and the Principles of true Religion and Loyalty, and that so good a Design may the more effectually be carried on; The Lord Lieutenant, and some of the Chief Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy of the said Kingdom, are appointed Commissioners to execute the Purposes of this Charter, and have a Power to elect others in the Room of their deceased Members; and are constituted a Corporation or Body Politic, by the Name of The Incorporated SOCIETY in Dublin, for promoting English Protestant Schools in Ireland: And are capable to receive and enjoy in Fee, and in Perpetuity, any Manors, Lands, Tenements, &c. the same not exceeding the Value of Two Thousand Pounds per Annum, and any Sum or Sums of Money, that shall be given them by any Person or Persons, Bodies Politic and Corporate, &c. to be applied for the Establishing and Supporting English Protestant Schools, in such Places of the Kingdom as they shall think proper.

The said Society is impowered to nominate and appoint School-masters and School-mistresses, to be approved and licensed by the Archbishops and Bishops respectively, to continue during the Pleasure of the said Society; who are to be supported by the Society, and provided with all Things necessary for the Instruction of the poor Children in the Principles of the Protestant Religion, Reading, Writing and Arithmetic; as likewise with proper Books and all necessary Materials fit for teaching them Husbandry, Housewifery, Trades, Manufactures, &c. in order to bring them up to Virtue, Labour and Industry.

The Society is likewise impowered to nominate Persons to receive Subscriptions, Benefactions, &c. in any Part of his Majesty's Dominions, from all well-disposed Persons.—The Society may elect and admit Subscribers (being Protestants) to be Members, to assist in carrying on the Design aforesaid.

PROCEEDINGS

INCORPORATED SOCIETY in Dublin for promoting English Protestant Schools in IRELAND, from the Opening of His late MAJESTY'S Royal Charter, February 6, 1733, to March 25, 1766.

THE Original Design of this Society is well known to have been principally formed by the late Right Reverend Dr. Henry Maule, Lord Bishop of Dromore, afterwards of Meath; which being highly approved and encouraged by the then Lords Justices, and a great Number of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, of the Commons, the Clergy and principal Gentlemen of the Kingdom, His late Majesty, upon their humble Petition, was graciously pleased in 1733, through the favourable
Interposition of His late Grace the Duke of Dorset, then Lord Lieutenant, to grant His Royal Charter of Incorporation for the Erecting and Supporting of Schools, wherein the Children

of Papists and other poor Natives might be instructed in the English Tongue and the Principles of true Religion and Loyalty, and trained up to the Practice of Industry and Labour.

In Pursuance of which, Charter-Schools have from Time to Time been erected by the Society in several Parts of the Kingdom, under the immediate Direction of Local Committees of the principal Gentlemen and Clergy in the Neighbourhood of each, who inspect and examine into the Instruction and Employment of the Children, their Food and State of Health; the Sufficiency and Diligence of the Masters and Mistresses, and all other Particulars relative to the Oeconomy and Management of the School, and report the same to the Society; besides which, the Schools are frequently visited and inspected by the several Members of the Society as they have Opportunity.

The Society have the Satisfaction to observe that their Scheme of dividing the Childrens Time between the Learning necessary for their future State of Life, and such gentle Work as is suited to their present tender Age, hath been successfully adopted by many Charity-Schools in Dublin and other Places; whereby the Benefit of the Institution hath probably been extended far beyond the Expectation of those who at first most warmly promoted it. But there is one Part of their Discipline peculiar to the Society, the Necessity of which ariseth from the peculiar Circumstances of the Children whom they receive into their Care; which is, the transplanting of them into such Schools as are most remote from their Popish Relations. This is their standing and invariable Rule; and the more effectually to secure its good Success, they do not fail to recommend to the several Local Committees, and strictly to enjoin the School-Masters, by all possible Means to guard

guard against and prevent an Intercourse or Communication between the Children and any of the Priests, or other Popish Inhabitants, in the Neighbourhood of the Schools.

The great Assistances, whereby the Society have from Time to Time been enabled to carry this extensive Design into Execution, have been annually published, not only for the Information of the Public, but in Gratitude to the pious and charitable Benefactors.

His late Majesty was graciously pleased in the Year 1739, to honour the Society with his Royal Countenance by a Donation of One Thousand Pounds, and an Annual Grant of the like Sum on the Establishment of this Kingdom. And His present Majesty has likewise been graciously pleased to continue to the Society the same Mark of His Royal Favour; which they humbly beg Leave, with the most respectful Duty, thankfully to acknowledge.

The Parliament of Ireland, with that laudable Zeal for the Advancement of the Protestant Religion and the Benefit of their Country, with which their Proceedings have ever been distinguished, have also been pleased to take the Society under their Protection, and to grant to their Use the Produce of a Tax on Hawkers and Pedlars, as well as several considerable Sums of Money, which have enabled the Society to encrease the Number of their Schools, and to erect Nurseries for the Reception of Children, too young to be admitted into the Schools.

The

24 Proceedings of the Incorporated Society, &c.

The Parliament have likewise given an additional and most honourable Testimony of their Confidence in the Society, by vesting in them the Estates granted by Richard late Earl of Ranelagh, for the Endowment of Charity-Schools in the Towns of Athlone and Roscommon.

The Contributions of private Persons, both in Great-Britain and Ireland, have also been very considerable; as may appear by the annual Account of Subscriptions and Donations received, and the Erection and Endowment of the several Schools. From the Commencement of the Society, to November 1765, the Sum of £ 40365 : 18 : 6 hath been remitted by the Corresponding Society in London; to whose zealous and most useful Endeavours for promoting this Charitable Institution, as well by communicating their Sentiments and Advice upon all Occasions, as by contributing and procuring Benefactions, the Society are too highly indebted, not to embrace with the greatest Pleasure, every Opportunity of professing their Obligations, and returning their most hearty Thanks.
